

Redesigned mini-Holland plans keep motorists and cyclists apart

Completely redesigned plans for the first phase of Kingston's multi-million pound mini-Holland proposal have been released – and it looks like a victory for cycling campaigners.

Updated designs released in January came under scrutiny after cycling groups, residents and motorists complained that segregation did not go far enough.

But revised plans released by Kingston Council show the segregation increased from just 20 per cent to 85 per cent.

Nick Davies, of the Kingston Cycling group, said the revised plans were a “considerable improvement” on the previous proposals.

He said: “We will be seeking further assurances about the design but, in the round, we support it.”

“This has some impressive features; fully protected space, floating bus stops, refuges for turning cyclists, possibly crossings which can detect bicycles and a well-thought-out link to Surbiton via Palace Road.

“It will be valuable for family and novice riders.”

Fish Freya sinks school's tuna dish

CHIEF REPORTER

NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

Tuna is apparently off the menu at a Kingston junior school – following a four-month campaign by one of its pupils.

Freya Greatwood, 11, convinced friends at St Paul's Junior School in Princes Road to boycott the school's tuna bake lunchtime meal after discovering the fish were in decline.

The aspiring marine biologist said: "I have always been into the sea but I didn't know that there weren't that many tunas.

"I looked it up and found out how endangered they are.

"I told my friends and we all stopped eating it. They all supported me."

To kick-start her campaign

School of thought: Freya wants to preserve tuna fish stocks

Deadline: KT90565

Freya wrote a letter to the headteacher at neighbouring Alexandra Infant School before writing to her own headteacher, Kevin Edmonds.

She said: "I think Mr Edmonds kind of just gave up on this one because I would have got the whole school not to eat tuna."

Proud father Marcus Greatwood, who works as a free diver, said: "Nobody was taking the tuna bake so they had to put out extra sandwiches.

"I am really proud of her. She had been fighting for it and she saw it all the way through."

Freya, of New Road, Kingston, said: "I feel very triumphant. I really want to open the secrets out there in the water world and fight off illegal whalers."

St Paul's Junior School said it did not want to comment on the change in menu.

Freya said she still enjoys school dinners, with cheesy pasta bakes being a favourite. She said: "I still like sausages, turkey and cheesy pasta. I don't eat fish because I don't know how it has been caught.

"My middle name is Dolphin but I don't really have a favourite sea creature because I like them all."

The youngster said her inspiration has been Canadian environmental activist Paul Watson who focuses on marine conservation.

She said: "Paul Watson said 'If the sea dies, then we die'. That really makes sense to me. I didn't realise he would be my inspiration at the time."

In her spare time Freya enjoys swimming, free diving, horse riding and singing with her band.

She will join Kingston Academy, the borough's first secondary free school, from September.

Going Dutch: Cyclists and drivers segregated in new plans

Letters were sent to 3,100 households in the Portsmouth Road area before the consultation period started and the council received 700 responses to the proposals.

Hundreds more visited exhibitions held in Guildhall and Harts Boat Yard.

About 60 per cent said they were in favour of the scheme's ideals as a whole but many complained that not enough was being done to protect the safety of cyclists.

The plans went to public consultation from January 19 to February 18 and showed about 20 per cent of the road separated for cyclists and the rest made up of painted cycle lanes.

Portsmouth Road was shown with a 2m wide cycle lane running down each side of the road and a 6m lane for two-way traffic with no central line.

The re-draft shows a fully

Proposals: The 'armadillo' humps segregated two-way cycle lane running from Portsmouth Road's junction with South Lane south to its junction with Palace Road.

The remaining 700m from Palace Road, south to the junction with Brighton Road, show a cycle route segregated using small "armadillo" humps, which designers say will offer additional protection for cyclists from cars in both directions.

Lead member for transport

Councillor Richard Hudson said: "There was a clear desire for more segregation between cyclists and motor vehicles and the new plans have increased this segregation from 20 per cent originally, to 85 per cent now.

"We have a vision where cyclists, new and experienced, will feel safe and confident taking trips along Portsmouth Road, whether it be for work, study or pleasure.

"We want to create a route that is fully accessible and attractive to pedestrians and where motor traffic can continue to move freely."

Despite the changes, project managers insist that the project will not exceed the £1.4m budget set aside for this phase.

Enabling works that were due to begin next month will now be pushed back to June, with full building work likely to start in late summer, after the Ride London race in August.

Project manager Inderpal Grewal said he hoped work would be completely finished before Ride London 2016.

In a letter sent to Portsmouth Road residents this week Mr Grewal said: "The response to the consultation was fantastic, with more than 700 people taking the time to feedback their views. If you were one of them, thank you."

'The life of a good man has been snuffed out'

REPORTER
BECKY MIDDLETON

Floral tributes have been placed at the spot of a fatal accident in New Malden a week ago.

Stephen Law, 55, was struck by a car in Kingston Road on Tuesday, March 10, and died later in hospital.

Flowers have been left at the zebra crossing next to where the crash happened, paying tributes to a man known fondly as "Dog".

A note left on a bunch of flowers said: "RIP Dog. Our hearts are with you. The loveliest man ever. You will be sorely missed. We'll raise a glass to you."

Mr Law lived in Mitcham and was a well-known face in Colliers Wood, where he enjoyed drinking in the Charles Holden pub in the High Street.

Mr Law has been described as a true gentleman.

An online tribute from Clo_Ryan posted on kingstonguardian.co.uk

said: "It's without doubt those that knew you are all finding it pretty hard to swallow the news of your saddened, distressing and untimely passing last Tuesday. You are and will be very much missed."

"Love and deep thoughts go out to your parents, your sister and all of your family and friends at what will be a very difficult and traumatic time for them."

A tribute from a man calling himself Billy said: "Hard to believe I saw him last Sunday in our local and he was so full of life."

"The life of a good man who cared about so many people has been snuffed out like a light. Gone too soon mate."

Police are investigating the collision, which happened just after 7am last Tuesday.

The driver of the car stopped after the crash.

Bridge work delayed again

Repairs to a Surbiton bridge have been delayed for a second time.

Work on the King Charles Road bridge, also known as the Iron Bridge, was meant to begin last month, and was pushed back to yesterday.

The repairs would have closed the bridge until May.

But this morning Network Rail again delayed the work.

A new deadline was yet to be set as the Kingston Guardian went to press.

Councillor Richard Hudson, lead member for capital, projects and contracts, said: "We're extremely disappointed that Network Rail decided at the last minute to delay these works, and for the second time in a few weeks."

"Much time and effort has gone into preparing for and communicating the closures to ensure residents planned different routes. Now we have to start again."

"We will be talking to Network Rail and expressing our displeasure at their last-minute changes. However, we will be arguing that, having delayed the works again, we would now like them moved into the summer months when traffic is not so heavy along those affected roads."

Fight aftermath: Police at the scene of the stabbing in Tolworth Broadway

Man charged over Tolworth stabbing

A college student has appeared in court charged with the attempted murder of a man who was stabbed three times in Tolworth Broadway.

Olanrewaju Kukoyi, 21, of Mill-lais Way, Epsom, appeared at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on Thursday, March 12, charged with the attempted murder of Fabrice Benjamin, carrying a six-inch kitchen knife and possessing a bag of cannabis.

The charges relate to an incident in Tolworth Broadway at about 5.50pm on Tuesday, March 10, when police were called to reports of a fight between two men by members of the public.

Mr Benjamin was stabbed three times - in his arm, in his chest and near his liver - and was taken to St George's Hospital in Tooting with life-threatening injuries, where he was placed in intensive care.

He is now said to be in a stable condition.

The defendant's lawyer, Sarah Taite, told the court that Mr Kukoyi lives at home with his parents and two older siblings and that he is studying business at college.

Mr Kukoyi did not enter pleas for any of the charges and will appear at Kingston Crown Court later this month.

He has been remanded in custody.

From Hurricanes to Harriers

REPORTER

JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@
london.newsquest.co.uk

He spent nearly half a century building some of Britain's most iconic military aircraft, from the Hurricane to the Harrier and the Hawk.

Jeffrey Tipper, 98, first stepped through the doors of Kingston's Hawker factory, then in Canbury Park Road, as an apprentice in 1933.

By the time he retired in 1981 he supervised a daytime team of 80 workers and a night shift of 12, having taken evening classes in management, paid for by the company.

The air show at Farnborough was a yearly trip for staff, and Hawker had its own spectators' stand. During World War II, loyal workers stayed on the line even when air raid sirens sounded.

Mr Tipper, pictured, of Shrewsbury Close, Surbiton, said: "When the air raid siren went off we just carried on working - we only stopped working if we got word from our spotters that a plane was coming in."

"You were getting air raids every day and every night, for a time."

A man would be stationed on the factory roof with a Lewis gun, and would call down if danger was imminent, he added.

Mr Tipper contacted the Surrey Comet after reading our report of a Harrier, long treasured by Surbiton air cadets, being driven away in January to be restored and sold on.

The story brought back memories of assembling the famous vertical take-off jets at the Richmond Road factory formerly used by Leyland.

Of the jets, variants of which served with air forces and navies around the world, he said: "They didn't spend much on tools at first. We didn't know if they were going to buy it or not. We built those things with a very minimal amount of tooling."

"To put the frames in I had a line on the floor and we lined things up like that."

"I can't understand why they scrapped the Harrier, because they can use them on the aircraft carriers."

Transitioning from propeller-driven fighters like the Hurricane to jets like the Hunter and Harrier posed little problem, Mr Tipper said.

He said: "The structure's the same, it's only the engines that were different. It was quite a simple job, really. An all-metal wing was lighter than a fabric-covered wing because the stress was taken up in the wing itself. In a fabric wing you needed a girder running through."

Mr Tipper has no favourite among the planes he worked on - though on the day the Surrey Comet met him, he wore a tie featuring embroidered Harriers in hover mode.

He was born in Hertfordshire in 1916, and moved to Surbiton after his father was called up for the war.

He himself did not enter active service in World War II, a consequence of having been run over by a bus aged 16 and left with, as he put it, "a dodgy right foot".

It was an odd parallel to an injury his father sustained to his right leg in a shooting accident, that did not quite keep him out of his war, he added.

The damage did not stop Mr Tipper joining the Home Guard, however, where he made corporal and became an expert in unarmed combat.

Then: An original Harrier

He moved to his home in Shrewsbury Close in 1955 with his late wife, Maisie. A keen painter, her pictures adorn the living room they shared; a leaping ballerina and a Picasso copy, among others.

The couple travelled widely in Europe including aboard the Comet, the ill-fated early jet liner. Mr Tipper was worried his wife might not enjoy flying, but on their first trip, appropriately enough for the partner of an aviation engineer, she loved the experience, he said.

Mr Tipper said that when he retired from the factory, "the directors up there wanted me to stay on, but I said, 'No, thanks.'"

Friends hold vigil for man, 51, killed by fire

CHIEF REPORTER

NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@
london.newsquest.co.uk

A man who died after being found on fire in a New Malden street was "let down" by the authorities, friends have claimed.

Colin Edwards, 51, died on Monday, March 9, at a specialist burns unit in Essex.

Mr Edwards, who had been homeless, was found with 50 per cent burns early on Friday, March 6, outside Clear House, an empty office building in Kingston Road where it was believed he had been sleeping.

It has been suggested Mr Edwards was cooking before the fire started.

He had been known to St Peter's Church in Norbiton, and had previously stayed at the YMCA in Surbiton.

At St Peter's big feast on Wednesday – a weekly meal for vulnerable and homeless people which Mr Edwards had previously attended – friends lit candles in his memory.

But several people claimed Mr Edwards should never have been left in the situation

'Let down': Tributes to Colin Edwards, inset

he was in when he died.

School friend John Ridley said: "Colin has always been a bit of a loner. He had mental health problems and the authorities would not deal with it."

"He was put on a shelf to rot. That's why he got into this mess. I saw him a couple of weeks ago and he said

"They won't house me, they won't come near me".

"No one wanted to help him."

"He should have been in cared accommodation or sheltered accommodation."

Kieran Cullen, 49, said: "He was a lovely fellow. I knew him about 20 years. He would not hurt a fly. He had a good heart. The authorities just would not help him."

A South West London and St George's Mental Health Trust spokeswoman confirmed Mr Edwards was known to the service, but was unable to comment further on what help he was ever given.

A Kingston Council spokesman said: "This is a terrible tragedy and the council's thoughts are with the friends and family of Mr Edwards."

"At this time we are looking into what support was sought by Mr Edwards and how we may have responded."

A London Fire Brigade spokesman said it would be submitting the findings of its investigation into the cause of the fire to the coroner in due course.

Kingston Road was closed between the High Street and Springfield Place following the fire at Clear House, to which emergency services were called to about 4.30am on March 6.

Another man was treated for smoke inhalation.

The Metropolitan Police said the death was being treated as non-suspicious.

Arrests after 'gun' fight

Six men were arrested in connection with a daytime brawl in Chessington where a knife and a gun were recovered by police officers.

Kingston police were called to reports of a fight in Ripon Gardens involving a group of men at 2.20pm on Wednesday.

A police spokesman said: "A firearm was found and recovered from the scene. It has been taken away for forensic examination."

"Enquiries are ongoing."

A knife was also found in the street and a man is believed to have suffered minor injuries that were not connected to the firearm, the spokesman later added.

No shots were believed to have been fired.

Police officers were seen looking in bins in the street after the fight.

Six men were arrested on suspicion of affray the same day.

All six men have been bailed until May.

Headbutting woman guilty

A woman followed strangers off a train and headbutted and punched them while on drugs.

Jennifer Lewis, 25, attacked her victims at Surbiton station on May 1 last year in an unprovoked attack.

She denied attacking a woman, but she had admitted attacking a man. She was found guilty at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on February 20.

Lewis, who lives in Canada Road, Cobham, was sentenced to prison for 26 weeks, suspended for 24 months. She will be jailed if she commits any more crimes in that time.

She was also told to go on a day-long thinking skills programme by magistrates at Wimbledon last Friday and ordered to pay compensation of £688, which will be taken out of her benefits.

The Thinking Skills Programme is a "group programme which will develop your thinking skills to help you stay out of trouble" according to probation services.

Lewis avoided paying court costs or a contribution to the national victim surcharge fund because she was deemed to be of limited means.

She had also pleaded guilty to failing to turn up at court after being released on bail.

Cannabis man

A man must carry out 80 hours of unpaid work after he was convicted of cannabis possession with intent to supply.

Charlie Wall, 19, of Verona Drive, Surbiton, had 7.57g of the drug when he was caught last November. He was ordered to pay £85 costs and a £60 surcharge at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on March 13.

Man hid drugs down his pants

REPORTER

LAURA PROTO

laura.proto@
london.newsquest.co.uk

A man who admitted concealing drugs under his foreskin has been fined.

Ian Brown, 34, pleaded guilty at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on Tuesday last week to possession of heroin and cannabis.

Plain clothes police officers were patrolling the Cattle Market car park in Kingston on February 21 and went into the public toilets where they found one cubicle occupied. They heard rustling of a bag and upon crouching on the floor, saw a needle and antiseptic wipe packet.

When Brown left the toilets, he was detained and taken to Kingston police station for a strip search.

Brown, who lives at Surbiton's YMCA, told the officers he had cannabis in his pants and later admitted having drugs under his foreskin.

In mitigation, the court heard Brown had been a drug addict, but was trying to stay away from drugs and committing offences of dishonesty.

He was fined £25 for possession of cannabis and £50 for possession of heroin. Brown was also ordered to pay costs of £25 and a surcharge of £20 – a total of £120.

A forfeiture and destruction order for the drugs was also issued.

Justin Craig; The Exam Experts

With GCSE and A-level exams approaching fast, some students have already planned their revision timetable for the forthcoming months. Where good exam preparation is concerned, being structured early on can help keep exam pressures manageable. Specialist Easter revision courses, sometimes called 'crammers' are becoming an increasingly popular way to make revision easier to swallow – often even, fun. While these GCSE, AS-level and A2 courses form only part of an overall revision programme, they will provide a springboard for final exam focused learning; covering weak spots, helping with 'question spotting', improving exam technique and boosting confidence.

Justin Craig Education, the UK's leading provider of such courses, has 23 centres nationwide and has been operating since 1981. Courses are offered throughout the year (including during Easter and May, the all-important exam time) at locations such as Surbiton, Wimbledon, Sutton, Ashted and Central London. Simon Williamson, Chairman of Justin Craig, recommends the following to ensure best use of your time:

- PLAN structured revision sessions, dividing your day into morning, afternoon and evening sessions and planning which subjects you'll do when. Permit a ten-minute (sharp) break every 30-45 minutes;
- ENSURE your revision plan finishes in advance of the exam dates, as this will allow for the unforeseen such as illness or other crises;
- INTERNALISE the learning. It is no good having great notes on paper which cannot be used during the exam. Find ways of filling subject content and their application to likely questions in your head;
- RE-FOCUS your efforts when you lose your way. It's natural that there will be times when you just won't be motivated to work. Develop a tactic which will quickly get you back on track - Remember failure isn't the falling over, it's the not getting back up; Finally it's worth saying that understanding that your exams start now (not in May) may be the difference between one grade and another.

Towers of the future planned for Tolworth

REPORTER

JON SHARMAN

jon.sharmam@london.newsquest.co.uk

This is how Tolworth Tower could look in years to come, according to developers CNM Estates.

The company has released images that show four new residential towers plus landscaping.

The plans would see the building currently home to the Broadway Bar, Garner's funeral directors, PMG Schoolwear, Costa and Boots demolished to make way for the new buildings, which would have commercial space on the ground floor.

Anil Jasani, who runs the Broadway Bar, said CNM chairman Wahid Samady had promised to meet him to discuss the development.

He said: "The concern is, what's going to happen to where [the bar] is? What's happening to this property and how long is this whole project going to take, and within what timescale are we going to know where we're going?"

The lease on the independent bar runs until 2038.

But Mr Jasani, a resident of the area since 1979, added: "I've always approved of development on the Tolworth Broadway. I'm up for development to bring some life into Tolworth."

Concerns were also raised at a public exhibition of the designs over a potential increase in traffic from a total of 400 new homes plus 60 serviced apartments.

One resident said: "The thing looks lovely, no doubt about that. What concerns us is the traffic that is going to come with it. It is total chaos coming off the A3 at Red Lion Road."

Mr Samady said traffic modelling showed weight of traffic would decrease, particularly at peak times, because of the conversion from office space to homes. However, several floors of offices would be retained, and may include space for start-up businesses.

Of the plans as a whole Mr Samady said: "People say 'Why are you doing this in Tolworth?' and I say I'm proud we are doing it in Tolworth. This building is a gateway."

He added: "There is definitely room, in my mind, for a bar [or] restaurant in this development."

Your Growing Companion!

If you have recently welcomed a kitten or puppy into your household please accept many congratulations from the team at ROYAL CANIN®! We recognise that getting things right throughout growth, which is one of the most intense and important stages in your new arrival's life, is vital. We want to support both you (as an owner) and your pet as best we can throughout this rapidly changing period.

Understandably, when a young puppy or kitten is involved, milestones will quickly be reached, behavioural development will be inevitable and there will always be an awful lot to keep up with. So below is a summary of a few key tips to help you keep on top of everything:

Basic Needs

The basic needs of a young dog or cat are simple and as follows:

- Lots of sleep, without being disturbed. Choose a bed that is comfortable, easy to clean and strong and place it in a quiet area.
- A clean supply of fresh water available at all times.
- Regular, frequent meals of puppy/kitten food in the same place and at the same times each day to help establish a structure.

Nutrition

When it comes to food, it is a good idea to stick to your new pet's existing routine as much as possible for the first few days. It is a good idea to ask the breeder to supply you with a small amount of your companions' current diet. Once those first few days are over and your companion is settled, you can start to introduce a ROYAL CANIN® diet (one designed for growth) very gradually, over 5-7 days, if you want to switch. Once your pet has made the change, follow the feeding guides on the pack closely, as these will differ month by month as your pet grows. Most puppies and kittens initially need at least 3 or 4 meals per day but the meal frequency can usually be reduced to 2 or 3 meals per day as they grow.

Play

During the first few weeks, allow your new arrival a few days of quiet rest to help ease settling in. Then offer gentle play, keeping play times short, with appropriate toys, used under supervision. Ensure there is no confusion and only allow and reward play behaviour that you will continue to encourage as your pet grows up. Ignore any inappropriate behaviour, even if it seems endearing in a young animal e.g. jumping up, climbing on furniture, mouthing and scratching.

Exercise

Don't take your puppy out for walks in public places or let your kitten outside until they have had their vaccinations. If you are not sure what is safe for your unvaccinated pet, speak to your vet for advice. Many vets will recommend keeping kittens inside until they are neutered, as early pregnancies are always a possibility. Remember it is very important to socialise your pet from a young age (see later). Particularly for puppies, you may need to carry them around with you to achieve this initially, until their vaccines cover them. Once it is safe for your puppy to go out, enjoy but don't overdo the exercise, as this could stress growing joints.

First vet visit

It's a good idea for your pet to have a check-up when they first come to live with you so that your vet can make sure they're healthy, arrange for necessary vaccinations and advise you on other recommendations. Regular vet checks help to keep your companion healthy as they grow and ensure that they get used to going to the vets.

Socialisation

We all want a happy, friendly and confident pet, but many owners don't realise that it is what their puppy experiences between the age of 4 and 16 weeks (younger for kittens) that is most important for this. In fact, the period between 4 and 16 weeks is known as the 'socialisation window', during which time your pet is much more accepting of any new situations and encounters. The more they experience during that time, the more they will be comfortable with as an adult. However, for an emotionally well-balanced companion, the best thing is to continue with ongoing socialisation opportunities throughout their life.

ASK THE VET

Royal Canin vet
Catherine-Mary
Howard answers some of your pet health questions.

Q Do I need to supplement my puppy's diet with extra vitamins and minerals to help support its growing bones and joints?

A We would always recommend feeding your puppy a complete and balanced diet that is designed for growing dogs. All of the diets that are marketed as "Complete Pet Foods" in the UK are balanced, with an adequate level of nutrients, so you can rest assured that they are providing your pet with exactly what they require with no need to provide any variety, supplements or titbits. You just need to ensure the diet you choose is a puppy food, as well as being complete. The ROYAL CANIN® diets designed for growing puppies are complete, so you do not need to add anything to them.

Q Why do I need to use a kitten food for my growing cat? How does it differ from adult cat food?

A When it comes to feeding cats, the main differences between a food designed for growth and a food designed for adult maintenance is the energy level and the calcium-phosphorous balance. Growing animals require more energy in relation to their body size to help support their growth and they also have different calcium and phosphorous requirements to help support their developing bones and joints. There are many other, more subtle differences in addition – developing a nutritionally balanced diet for feline growth is not straight forward and pet food companies are closely regulated, so it is always best to use a specifically designed commercial pet food for your growing pet.

Fewer leaflets plea will fall on deaf ears

In his letter (All parties should cut leaflet numbers, March 12) Chris Walker, of Kingston Green Party, wildly underestimated the number of leaflets the Liberal Democrats inflicted on the unsuspecting residents of St James' ward in December's byelection.

He thought it was 10 leaflets, but as the photograph, right, shows, it was at least 16, and probably somewhere in the 20s.

Mr Walker made another mistake – he thought the ward has 2,500 homes, but it is closer to 3,400.

Had the Liberal Democrats won by a few votes, their election expenses would indeed have got the utmost scrutiny. To produce that many leaflets for the £1,089 Mr Walker cites is certainly a miracle of procurement.

Had the 16 or more leaflets said

Party message: Liberal Democrat leaflets anything interesting, they might have achieved something.

However, the basic message of each was that the sun shines out of Edward Davey's fundament – a message that wore thin with constant repetition.

Despite, or perhaps because of, bombarding the populace with leaflets, the Liberal Democrat vote in St James' has declined from 42 per cent in 2002 – when Liberal Democrat Celia Osbourne held one of the three seats – to 33 per cent.

Unfortunately, Mr Walker's plea for the Liberal Democrats to produce fewer leaflets is likely to fall on deaf ears.

On June 6, 2013, Mr Davey held a fundraiser in a Mayfair hotel.

Kevin Maguire calculated 40 tables at £1,500 a pop must have raised £60,000, "as heads of the power industry paid homage to the cabinet minister".

Given the size of his war chest and the size of his ego, Kingston and Surbiton can only expect many more "fundamental" leaflets.

Drink laws the problem

I think most borough residents and patrons would agree that the Vinotique wine bar in Claremont Road has been run responsibly and with great effort, energy, verve and creativity by those in charge.

It is a real shame, then, that this fine establishment has had its licence suspended for two weeks.

Those running it did not deserve that.

The real problem remains the outdated, archaic licensing laws in this country. Unlike most of the world, we still have not quite cottoned on that they are simply not conducive to a calming, enjoyable, relaxing, grown-up atmosphere.

Ironically, they continue to promote edgy or even hostile environments.

Treat people like children and you will more likely get childish behaviour.

It amazes me that we see how it works on the continent, but have still not followed suit.

JONATHAN JOBBINS
 Surbiton

I declared an interest

I am writing in response to Michael Hope's letter (School plans are best of a bad job, March 5) about the planning application from Tolworth Girls' School.

Mr Hope mentioned in his letter about my reticence on the planning application from Tolworth Girls' School at the last south of the borough neighbourhood meeting.

The reason for not participating in the discussion is that I made a declaration of personal interest on this agenda item.

I have been associated with Tolworth Girls' School for the past 18 years through my involvement with a voluntary organisation – hence, my declaration of personal interest in this subject.

However, I would like to assure you that I will always support the concerns of the residents as an elected representative of the ward.

COUNCILLOR

Need better consultation on mini-Holland plan

Regarding the mini-Holland proposals, here is my view.

As far as I can see, this is not a formal consultation, but just an opportunity for residents to express an opinion on a scheme already decided.

It is obvious that the council will snap at the offer of £43m to provide better facilities.

However, there must be proper consultation, with the public given full information and the options considered, in order for them to make informed comments.

I am particularly interested to find out exactly who has received the glossy leaflets.

How have you reached all the people, from the outside, who regularly use the road into Kingston?

For example, did you contact the police, fire, ambulance, motoring organisations, voluntary organisations, disabled residents in Portsmouth Road, and disabled residents in adjoining roads, shops and restaurants?

Do people realise this is a stand-alone road from High Street to Brighton Road?

It goes nowhere and the "highway" does not extend beyond those points.

With extra crossings and reduced speed limits, traffic will back up more than usual.

Where will it go? Penrhyn Road, which is already congested with bus lanes and periodic blocks by Surbiton High School coaches?

Where will blue badge holders be able to park safely with all parking being prohibited on the riverside?

Church parking does not happen just on Sundays.

Even on Sundays, there is congestion in Portsmouth Road and the adjoining streets.

How will less able people park if cycle lanes have raised barriers?

With reduced area for cars and others in the centre of the road, where can they pull over for emergency vehicles?

The thought of a central area for cars and others without any white lines to divide worries me.

New seating on the riverside appears to be large – low slabs of granite or marble – no use at all to people less able.

Finally, when I attended a meeting on February 4, I was told that St Raphael's Church had been consulted.

On my way home, I called in and found that, even at that late date, they knew nothing of the scheme.

Sleep tight National Bed Month

BED FACT

Now it can get chilly but apparently it is a good idea to sleep with the window open, or if it is too cold leave the bedroom door ajar to allow fresh air to circulate. When you get up, pull back the covers and air the bed for at least 20 minutes to air the mattress and duvet.

BED FACT

Certain scents, such as lavender, camomile, bergamot, jasmine, rose and sandalwood increase sleepiness. You can try adding a few drops on your pillow or choose fabric conditioners with these fragrances.

BED FACT

Each year we lose half a kilo of dead skin cells and each night we lose more than a quarter of a litre of moisture. That's why it's recommended we wash pillows and duvets every six months at 60°C, the temperature that kills the dust mites.

BED FACT

Anti-Allergenic bedding is ideal for allergy sufferers. It is not the dustmites that cause allergic reactions, but their faeces that are allergen laden triggering conditions such as asthma, rhinitis and eczema. Bedding must be cleaned regularly.

Did you know that March is National Bed Month?

It's an annual event that has been running for more than 20 years and promotes the importance of a good, comfortable bed for a great night's sleep.

So if you're thinking about buying a new bed this month (they'll be some great offers around) then look for the new National Bed Federation's (NBF) big tick mark of approval to be sure you're buying a safe, clean and honest product from a reputable manufacturer.

It comes in the wake of recent horror stories about fake fire labels being found on non-compliant beds in well-known retail stores; and rip-off traders selling grotty old mattresses in cheap new covers from the back of vans. At worst, these so-called 'bargain beds' could be potentially lethal fire hazards – and at best uncomfortable and dirty.

The new NBF Approved big tick logo is only awarded to British manufacturers who pass rigorous independent testing to ensure the mattresses they produce meet the UK's stringent flammability regulations, are hygienic – and exactly what they say they are.

Here are some factors on whether it's time for a new bed:

- Is the bed seven years old or more?
 - Does it make creaking noises in the night?
 - Did you have your best recent night's sleep in a bed other than yours?
 - Are you waking up more frequently unrefreshed and aching?
 - Do you and your partner have enough space to sleep comfortably?
 - Is it sagging?
 - Does it feel lumpy in the night?
- If you answered yes to most of these, it's time for a new mattress!

National Bed Month is a great opportunity to grab yourself a bargain as plenty of retailers will be offering some fantastic deals for the awareness event. Make sure you check out our bed buying or bed advice videos here before you go shopping though.

Say Yes to a new bed this March.

DREAM lovers

ALMOST two thirds of British women would choose soft and squidgy men as bed-partners over firm and fit blokes, new national research has revealed.

Some 64 per cent of women admit they'd like to fall asleep next to someone like actor and comedian James Corden or Daybreak presenter Aled Jones.

They'd even choose the soft and cuddly blokes over the firm and fit features of chiseled celebrity men like David Beckham or Bradley Cooper, according to the nationwide study by The Fine Bedding Company.

Just one in five UK (20 per cent) ladies said Becks and Bradley possess the 'cuddle factor' they love in bed while the rounder features of Corden and Jones are far more appealing.

SIX NATIONS RUGBY

For the second Six Nations running the result will come down to the last game of the championship, and when England take the field at Twickenham on Saturday they will know exactly what needs to be done.

An enviable position, for sure, but the prospects are not quite so rosy if you consider England's visitors, an admittedly under-performing France side, compared with Ireland's sojourn to Scotland and Wales' trip to Italy.

France are technically still in contention, but only a whopping win over England and Welsh and Irish losses give them a chance, so it is between England, Ireland and Wales for a winner.

England have a four point advantage over Ireland going into the final game, with points differences of 37 and 33 respectively, with Wales third with +12 difference.

Wales are heading to Italy, while Ireland take on Scotland, so both will be looking for points aplenty.

FIXTURES

Saturday, March 21

ITALY v WALES

12.30pm – Stadio Olimpico

SCOTLAND VS IRELAND

2.30pm BT Murrayfield

ENGLAND VS FRANCE

5pm Twickenham

First out of the blocks will be Wales, who square up against the Azzurri at the Stadio Olimpico, then Scotland and Ireland do battle at Murrayfield and the final game takes place at Twickenham for a most certain grandstand finish.

England coach Stuart Lancaster was pleased with the consistency in selection that has seen England use 29 players so far. In a game that could bring the championship back to Twickenham for the first time since 2011, a shuffle of the pack now would be controversial. But Lancaster said: "There are certainly one or two people from the bench who have put their hands up. I thought Geoff Parling did well – and Tom Youngs too.

"In fact, I thought the whole bench made a strong impact as well – Keiran Brookes was excellent really – but I can't see there being too many changes."

Scotland proved no walkover in the Calcutta Cup, and France's 29-0 win in Italy showed improvement from the French which will give them "the world of confidence", said Lancaster.

"France are a high quality team who are very big and physical. They might still have something to play for as well. We won't start dreaming yet.

"Last season we knew points difference would have a big say in how things played out. The challenge was for us to go to Italy and score a large number of points to win the game.

"Certainly the emphasis on that day – and it will be the same on Saturday – is to get the performance right. We'll look to build our game and take the opportunities when they come.

"If that means it's three points, it's three points. If we get ahead of ourselves, we'll undoubtedly come unstuck."

THE BOY IN THE STRIPED PYJAMAS

● The Rose Theatre, High Street, Kingston; April 28 to May 2; from £9; rosetheatrekington.org

HISTORY BOYS

Director Joe Murphy tells RACHAEL BURFORD about the challenges of staging harrowing drama The Boy in the Striped Pyjamas

John Boyne's 2006 novel The Boy in the Striped Pyjamas has been described as one of the most deeply moving and thought-provoking books of modern times.

The harrowing story of a concentration camp commandant's son and his relationship with a Jewish boy on the other side of the camp fence, the book became an instant best-seller, and adapted into a film in 2008.

Now the stage adaptation of the tragic Holocaust novel is coming to the Rose Theatre at the end of April.

Director Joe Murphy seems to have an artistic policy to produce work with a political and a social dimension – a category that The Boy in the Striped Pyjamas perfectly falls into.

For Murphy, his fascination with the Holocaust started at school.

He says: "I remember that we learned about the Holocaust as part of what we were taught about World War II."

"I found it odd that such an important event should be treated almost incidentally."

"It seemed to me that it should have been taught the other way round with World War II in the background and the Holocaust the main subject."

Murphy's challenges when directing a play of this nature were numerous. Not only is it an extremely popular novel with sensitive subject matter, but two children are the lead characters in the production.

"I think that it's important for them to understand the context of the play," says Murphy.

"We have to decide how much needs to be shown onstage and how much the young actors need to know in order to tell the stories of their characters."

"The further away a boy is from the character, the more he's likely to struggle."

"But we should also remember that John's novel is incredibly popular with schoolchildren anyway."

"Kids get the book and they get the horror of what happens in it. Of course, it is an intensely emotive subject, but I believe that it is a subject that we should keep talking about."

Getting the message of the play over to audiences is something that Murphy feels is important.

The juxtaposition between a seemingly normal family life and the horror of a concentration camp is a key part of the story.

Murphy says: "The first half of the play is brilliant in that it gives us a normal family, despite what is happening outside."

"You wonder how this normal family can collude with such a government or can turn a blind eye to what is going on. I'd always argue that our allegiance should be directed to our friends rather than the state. At the same time, I wonder how we would act in such circumstances."

I found it odd that such an important event should be treated almost incidentally

KICKSMAN

Expect discussion of poignant topics, such as race, religion and sexuality, in his usual brutally honest style as Reginald D Hunter tackles the difficult issues, all in his famous Southern drawl, writes Danielle Lowe.

Hunter has previously received complaints that he is trying to cause controversy, but defends his topics.

He says: "It's amazing how many people go out of their way to be offended by what you're saying. 'There is also a group of people who believe that misrepresenting what you say is a weapon of debate.'"

The tour comes after Hunter, originally from Georgia in the United States, finished recording a three-part series for the BBC about 150 years of American popular music by travelling between North Carolina and New Orleans.

During the tour Hunter had the chance to interview various musicians and see the open road.

Hunter recalls interviewing blues musician Dr John.

He says: "Dr John asked me, 'What do you do?' I told him I was a stand-up.

"He replied, 'So you're a kicks man. It's a very important job, providing kicks for people.'"

It isn't just about giving people kicks that gives Hunter his own kicks.

He adds: "It makes me smarter. I spend a lot of time alone in hotels and airports. When you're locked away, you do a lot of thinking and come back smarter."

While taking his tour across the world Hunter says: "In my head, the person I'm writing my shows for is British. If you make it as a comedian in Britain, then you can branch out to the colonies."

"Unlike people in the US, Brits won't say, 'You're too deep' or 'You think too much'. I'm not a social outcast in Britain because I use words of more than five letters. That's one of the many things I love about Britain."

Hunter can be recognised from a number of popular comedy television shows including 8 out of 10 Cats, Never Mind the Buzzcocks and QI but often avoids saying too much, giving the public just a short clip of his humour.

Celebrating SUCCESS

Streets Ahead launched its 25th anniversary celebrations by surprising long serving member of staff Marina Steel with the gift of a Rolex watch, writes Beverley Morrison.

Marina, whose nephew is Croydon-based X Factor winner Ben Haenow, has been with the estate agency since it was founded 25 years ago by Managing Director Bob Hay and Director Gary O'Hare.

Since then Streets Ahead has grown to be one of the best known estate agencies in south east London and Surrey.

So Marina – one of the agency's top producers – was thrilled when Gary O'Hare made the surprise presentation in recognition of her sterling 25 year service with the company.

"For the first time in my life I was lost for words – I was half expecting a carriage clock as a joke but never imagined I would get a Rolex!" said a delighted Marina, who lives in Shirley.

"Streets Ahead has been a brilliant company to work for, both through the good and the tough times, and I have loved it."

Streets Ahead are planning a host of 25th anniversary celebrations throughout the spring, with the Mayor and Chief Executive of Croydon Council set to be guests of honour at silver anniversary events in the Croydon flagship office.

"We've extended an invitation to Marina's nephew Ben Haenow to join the party – he's a busy guy but we'd love to see him help his aunt celebrate her big anniversary with Streets Ahead."

As part of their 25th Anniversary Celebrations, the team at Streets Ahead have pledged to raise money for the Streets Ahead Estate Agents Foundation which helps local charities.

The estate agents are also sponsoring the Croydon half marathon on March 29.

Streets Ahead are a multi-award winning South East London and Surrey estate agency, specialising in sales, lettings, new homes, commercial, corporate lets and property management.

Portal's big challenge

OnTheMarket (OTM) has a mountain to climb to overtake Zoopla in the property portal market, according to latest research by the property search engine Home.co.uk.

OTM, which went online at the end of January and is run by high street estate agents co-operative Agents' Mutual, imposed a highly controversial 'one other portal' rule on agents using the site to give them an advantage.

This requires agents wanting to join OTM to drop one of the two leading property portals (Rightmove and Zoopla) and stop advertising their clients' properties on smaller portals.

With 4,927 agents signed up by March 10, OTM looks to have only achieved fifth place among property portals, behind Rightmove, Zoopla, Primelocation and Mouseprice, and just ahead of sixth-placed Nethouseprices.

Home.co.uk's latest figures, which are based on agent sales of office data, reveal the extent to which OTM's tactics have affected Zoopla, but not Rightmove.

Figures show that the day after OnTheMarket's January 26 launch, Zoopla was used by 10,712 agency offices. But, by March 10, this had fallen to 9,072. Meanwhile, the number of agents using Rightmove fell by just 138 to 12,712.

ROAD TEST:
Skoda Fabia Estate
by Matt Joy

NOVEL APPROACH

WHAT'S NEW? The Fabia itself is pretty much new from the ground up; the exterior is all-new, there's a stack of new engines to choose from and the suspension is heavily revised. The Estate version adds to this a substantial load area at the rear, which Skoda claims is the biggest in the class. It majors on the practicality front elsewhere too, with novel storage features like bottle holders on the inside shoulders of the front seats.

LOOKS AND IMAGE: It's not hard to distinguish the Fabia Estate from its hatchback cousin thanks to the significant changes at the rear. However, the estate rear is sensibly integrated into the original shape, and as long as you choose a model with decent-sized wheels.

The Fabia Estate is one of the most sensible cars you can buy, so it's understandable that its image is well grounded rather than flash.

SPACE AND PRACTICALITY: As you'd expect the Fabia Estate is designed to be practical but it's a remarkable feat at just how spacious this car is. With the seats up there's 530 litres of space on offer – more than some estates from the class above – and with them folded there is 1,395 litres on offer.

BEHIND THE WHEEL: From behind the wheel, there's very little to distinguish the Estate from its hatchback sibling, which is a credit to Skoda's efforts. There's no noticeable increase in noise despite the extra space behind you, and it drives with the same composure

Cactus takes awards

The Citroen C4 Cactus has been awarded the top accolade at the Carbuyer.co.uk Best Cars of the Year awards.

The Cactus drove away with the top prize after winning praise from road testers and being revealed as the most frequently searched-for motor on the buyer-focused website.

In a successful awards handout for Citroen, the Cactus also won its category (Best Economical Car), while the Grand C4 Picasso won in the Best Seven-Seater field.

Stuart Milne, editor of Carbuyer.co.uk, said: "The quirky Citroen C4 Cactus, with its Airbump panels, has been set up with comfort in mind and it's extremely economical with a return of more than 60mpg for the petrol engine. A worthy winner of the Carbuyer Best Car of the Year 2015."

Linda Jackson, Citroen's CEO, commented: "The Citroen C4 Cactus has already won more than 25 major awards and these latest accolades from Carbuyer are particularly pleasing – for two reasons.

"Firstly, it's fantastic to win the overall car of the year prize as well as taking the win in the Best Economical Car category.

"Secondly, Carbuyer offers advice to customers who are actively in the process of looking for a new car, so these awards are very important for a new entrant to the market like the C4 Cactus."

While every care is taken to avoid mistakes, the publisher cannot accept liability for any errors, misprints, or omissions in the printing of this advertisement.

Conditions of acceptance of advertisements

General

- The following conditions apply to the placing of an order for insertion of advertisements in Newsquest Media Group ("Newsquest") printed or electronic publications. Each order will form a separate agreement and English law will apply. Any change to these conditions must be agreed by us in writing (which means by exchange of letter, fax or email). An "advertiser" means any person or organisation placing an advertisement on their own account or on behalf of another.

Contents

- The advertiser confirms that the advertisement complies with all applicable legislation, regulations and codes of practice, including the codes supervised by the Advertising Standards Authority. We may reject or require changes to any advertisement so as to comply with legal or moral obligations placed on us or the advertiser; to avoid infringing the rights of a third party or any relevant code of practice; or to meet our published production and quality specifications.
- The advertiser further confirms that:
 - the publication of the advertisement will not breach any contract, infringe the copyright, trademark or other right of any third party and is not libelous of any person;
 - all licences and consents from third parties necessary for the publication of the advertisement have been obtained and paid for, including consent from living persons identified in copy or pictures (photographic or otherwise);
 - in respect of an investment advertisement, the contents have been approved by, or the advertiser is, and authorised person within the meaning of the Financial Services Act 1986 as amended or the advertisement is otherwise permitted under that Act.

Payment

- All advertisements must be paid for in full at the time of booking unless credit has been agreed. The price shall be the amount fixed by our published rate card on the date of acceptance of the order plus VAT where applicable. For non-credit advertisers, we will cancel publication of an advertisement that has not been paid for on time. For credit advertisers, we will cancel publication of any future advertisements if payment is not made in accordance with our payment terms. For credit advertisers, interest will be charged on late payments at the rate of 3% above the Bank of England's base lending rate from the date payment is due together with the administration costs of collecting an overdue debt.
- By placing an order with us, an advertising agency confirms that it contracts as principal with full authority from its client in all matters connected with the order and is responsible for all payments due. We will only accept advertisements from advertising agencies if they are recognised by us.
- We will try to give notice of increases, but we reserve the right to change our advertising rates at any time. This will not affect contracts, including any fixed term agreement for a series of advertisements.

Box numbers

- We will use reasonable efforts to forward replies to box numbers within a reasonable time, but we are not responsible for any failure or delay caused by circumstances beyond our reasonable control, or for any losses relating to an advertiser's business or any loss that is not reasonably foreseeable by both parties.

Cancellation

- We will notify the advertiser of the latest time that orders can be cancelled (the "booking" deadline) and the latest time that advertising copy can be received by us ("the copy deadline"). An advertiser may cancel up until copy deadline and we will make reasonable efforts to re-sell the space, but the advertiser will be liable for the full price if the space is not sold and we will reclaim any unearned volume-based discount. Private advertisers booking by telephone or online may cancel in accordance with relevant law, but no refund shall be available after the copy deadline unless cancellation is due to our negligence. If the copy is not received by the copy deadline, we will not be liable if the advertisement does not appear, but the advertiser will remain liable to make full payment for the price of the advertisement.
- We will try to satisfy an advertiser's request regarding the positioning of an advertisement, but no guarantee of position can be given unless agreed by us and paid for at the rate then current.

Errors

- We are not liable for any error, misprint or non-appearance of an advertisement unless caused by our negligence, in which case the advertiser will be entitled to a re-insertion or proportionate refund. The advertiser is solely responsible for checking the advertisement on each insertion and ordering correction where necessary. Except where we have been negligent, we shall not be liable for an error or misprint that, in our reasonable opinion, does not materially detract from the advertisement. We shall not be liable in any case for losses relating to any business or public fund-raising for the advertiser, such as lost customers, revenue or profit.

Copyright

- Advertisements are accepted on condition that we have the right to publish them online as well as in any booked titles. The copyright in work or material we contribute to or re-work for an advertisement belongs to us. We will dispose of advertiser's copy, artwork, photographs or other materials after six months unless collected.

General

- We shall not be liable if our publishing activities are restricted or prevented by any law, act or event beyond our reasonable control (including, for example, industrial dispute). In such case, the advertiser shall accept publication when available or otherwise may cancel the order by written notice and pay only for work done and materials used.
- We will use the advertiser's details for internal administration. Unless the advertiser tells us not to in writing at any time, we may also share details with other Newsquest companies or with carefully selected third parties, who may send information about goods and services.
- The advertiser will be liable to pay us for all costs, losses, expenses and damages of any kind suffered or incurred by us as a result of legal claims or actions, actual or threatened, arising from the advertiser's breach of these conditions or the publications of the advertisement, unless caused by our own negligent act or failure.
- We may cancel the order at any time if the advertiser breaches these conditions and the breach is not capable of remedy or it continues for seven days after we have given written notice of it, or if we reasonably believe the advertiser is unable to pay debts or the advertiser goes or threatens to go out of business.

Method of payment

We will be pleased to accept your payment by any of the following methods:

- CHEQUE - Made payable to NEWSQUEST (LONDON) LTD.
- BACS - Electronic Bank Transfer

Casuals looking to set new points record

Corinthian Casuals are after a record Ryman Division One South points haul this term.

Carl Wilson-Denis, right, struck to give the Casuals a 1-1 draw at Tooting & Mitcham United on Saturday to bounce back from a 6-1 mauling at Hythe Town last Tuesday.

"Realistically, a top 10 position for a club like ours is a great achievement and it's definitely there for the taking," said keeper Danny Bracken.

Double is still on

Surbiton Ladies maintained hopes of repeating last season's league and cup double by securing top spot in the WHL Premier Division and booking their place in the Women's Cup final at the weekend.

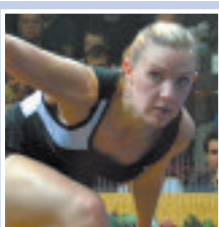

Goals from Giselle Ansley, Emily Atkinson (two) and Jenna Woolven bagged a 4-2 top flight triumph at Bowdon Hightown on Saturday.

Twenty-four hours later Woolven and Atkinson were at it again as Surbiton beat Loughborough Students 2-0 to set up a cup final appearance against Clifton at Lee Valley on April 25.

Head coach Brett Garrard's side are yet to be beaten this season and they will look to preserve that record when Holcombe visit Sugden Road this weekend.

An Alan Forsyth hat-trick set the men on their way to a 6-3 triumph over Brooklands Manchester University, but MHL Premier Division leaders East Grinstead's 4-1 win over Reading meant Todd Williams' side had to settle for a second-placed finish in the table.

They face Wimbledon in the Championship play-off semi-finals at the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park on April 11.

Masterclass: Ex-world champ Laura Massaro

Inspired by Laura

Surbiton Racket & Fitness Club's head squash coach Michael Hennings believes a masterclass from world number three Laura Massaro will give the club a huge boost.

Massaro, a three time Commonwealth Games silver medalist and a former world champion, will host sessions with junior and senior members on March 28.

"Squash participation at the club is very strong especially among juniors so having such a high calibre player like Laura working with our juniors and adults will give them such a boost," said Hennings.

BRIGHT: Royals head coach Bryan reflects on Surrey success

STUART AMOS

Kingston Royals head coach Damien Bryan says the future looks bright for the club after a successful Surrey Championships.

The Kingston and New Malden-based swimming club claimed 45 medals to finish fifth in the medals table and third on points, meaning they retained the Tinlin Trophy.

Dylan Conway – who won 12 medals in total – and Yasmine Hamerlaine each claimed three gold medals to account for half the club's golden haul as they were the stand out performers.

But Bryan, who took over as head coach before Christmas, hailed the efforts of those who did not qualify for the individual events, but helped deliver two bronze medal-winning relay performances.

And he expects more from the squad in the coming months as many of the club's young stars bid to set qualifying times for the national championships in July.

"As head coach I am pleased with our results at the Surrey Championships," he said.

Showing their metal: Kingston Royals youngsters Jude Boden, Dylan Conway, Louis Davies, Luca Capezzuoli and Kayla Watson show off the fruits of their labour at the Surrey Championships

"We were also able to bring in 15 swimmers to our relay teams who had not qualified in an individual event this year and they performed fabulously achieving some great personal bests in what was an exciting day of relays for the team.

"We were unfortunate to miss out on more medals, taking five fourth place finishes on the day.

"Swimmers can only qualify for the national championships with times set between March and May.

"And after some positive performances at the Surrey championships we have a number of swimmers setting their sights on qualifying for the nationals."

Royals athletes next head to the Bournemouth Open later this month and the Crawley Open on April 18 as they gear up for the London Regional Championships in May.

Ram-ing home their advantage

New Malden's Tom Onslow-Cole and Ram Racing might be losing the battles, but they are winning the 24 Hour Series war, writes Stuart Amos.

The 27-year-old and teammates Paul White and Adam Christodoulou took their team to the top of the championship standings with a second successive podium finish in Italy on Saturday.

The trio had led after four hours of the 12 hours of the Mugello event on Friday afternoon, but a queue at the fuelling station cost them more than a lap on Saturday.

And it was a gap the team were unable to bridge leaving the number 30 Mercedes – one of seven SLS AMG GT3s in the race – to cross the line in second place.

It was enough to secure top spot in the championship with four races to go, leaving team boss Dan Shufflebottom in philosophical mood.

"We came here for the race win but we'll take second, as we have achieved our ultimate goal of leading the championship," he said.

"It wasn't that we had bad luck, it's just that the winners had some good luck and that's just how it goes, we can't complain."

"The strategy was good, the pit crew were flawless and the drivers did exactly what was asked of them, so I can't ask for more than that."

Onslow-Cole and Christodoulou returned to the team, following a second place finish in Dubai 24 Hours, the opening round of the championship.

SPORTSbrief

SILVER SERVICE: Kingston College's U19 men's rugby sevens team claimed silver at the London Youth Games sevens festival in Barn Elms last week. The college, who were representing their borough, lost 28-5 to Hillingdon in the final. Meanwhile, Coombe Boys School will represent Kingston at the London Youth Games sportshall athletics finals at Crystal Palace on March 24.

MORE MEDALS: Kingston & Polytechnic Harrier Pippa Earley collected a silver medal at the England indoor pentathlon championships in Sheffield at the weekend. The 14-year-old won three out of five events – 60m hurdles, long jump and 800m – to be the second-placed English U15 girl in a field of 47. Earley is ranked the UK's number two in the event.

PARKRUN: Paul Edwards set a new personal best to win the Kingston parkrun on Saturday morning in a time of 18 minutes 12 seconds.

Hanging on: Ks keeper Rob Tolfrey, right

"The FA has not yet concluded their investigation into Rob Tolfrey's part in the incident.

"Bognor would particularly like to thank Kingstonian player Alex Addai who submitted a statement denying any racial abuse had occurred, as well as Kingstonian themselves who were extremely helpful and co-operative at all times."

Meanwhile, Kingstonian kept in the play-off hunt with a 2-1 win over Witham Town on Saturday thanks to goals from Josh Casey and Pelayo Pico Gomez.

They head to stuttering Met Police on Saturday, knowing a win will close the gap between themselves and the top five.
